The Foundation for the Development of International Law in Asia (DILA)

The Foundation was established in 1989 by three Asian émigré international law scholars based in the Netherlands: Ko Swan Sik (Indonesia), JJG Syatauw (Indonesia) and MCW Pinto (Sri Lanka). The three founders of DILA believed that economic and political developments in and among the countries of Asia had reached the stage that they would welcome and benefit substantially from a mechanism to promote and facilitate exchanges among their international law scholars. At the same time, they believed that a regular and reliable source of information concerning international law as applied or interpreted by states in Asia would be of interest to other states and contribute significantly to the progressive development of an international legal order.

Having determined that Asia was not ready for a full-fledged Society of international law, the founders registered DILA as a foundation or stifting in the Netherlands. This remains how the organisation is structured today.

The Foundation was established to promote:

- > the study and analysis of topics and issues in the field of international law, in particular from an Asian perspective;
- > the study of, and the dissemination of knowledge of, international law in Asia;
- > contacts and co-operation between persons and institutions actively dealing with questions of international law relating to Asia.

The Foundation reports and analyses developments in the field of international law relating to the region through the medium of its flagship publication, the Asian Yearbook of International Law which has been published continuously since 1990.

At present, the Foundation consists of an Advisory Board of 17 members, and a Governing Board of 14 members. The Asian Yearbook of International Law is edited by three editors, who are also members of the Foundation. The Foundation is self-selecting and charges no membership fees.

The Asian Yearbook of International Law

The Asian Yearbook of International Law is the flagship publication of DILA and was first published in 1991, just two years after the Foundation was established. Traditionally, it is edited by a team of three editors from different countries, with one coordinating editor leading the team.

The Asian Yearbook of International Law is a major refereed publication dedicated to international law issues as seen primarily from an Asian perspective. It is the first publication of its kind edited by a team of leading international law scholars from across Asia. The Yearbook provides a forum for the publication of articles in the field of international law, and other Asian international law topics, written by experts from the region and elsewhere.

Its aim is twofold: to promote international law in Asia, and to provide an intellectual platform for the discussion and dissemination of Asian views and practices on contemporary international legal issues. Each volume of the Yearbook normally contains articles and shorter notes; a section on State practice; an overview of Asian states participation in multilateral treaties; succinct analysis of recent international legal developments in Asia; an agora section devoted to critical perspectives on international law issues; surveys of the activities of international organizations of special relevance to Asia; and book review, bibliography and documents sections. It will be of interest to students and academics interested in international law and Asian studies.

Volumes 1 to 12 of the Yearbook were published by Brill, while Volume 13 and all following volumes are published by Routledge. The Yearbook is currently edited by:

- > Li-ann THIO, Professor, Faculty of Law, National University of Singapore, SINGAPORE
- > Bhupinder S CHIMNI, Professor of International Law, School of International Studies, Jawarharlal Nehru University, INDIA
